I just began reading this pdf. It is actually written in straightforward words instead of hard to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding. (Jensen Bins)

Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Infant Salvation and Confessional Revision The Southern Presbyterian Church has been wrestling for a long time with the matter of the revision of the Westminster Confession, in one form or another. First, there was a call for a revision of the proof-texts attached to the various sections by way of giving the scriptural basis for these statements. This has taken several years to finish, but the work is illogical and incomplete because it was done on the understanding that the text of the Confession itself was not to be touched; so where statements were not capable of being supported by Scripture proof there ordinarily occurs a blank instead of such irrelevant texts as formerly stood in many places for proof. The proof-text committee made no recommendation of change in the Confession. But the fact that any statements are incapable of proof of some kind calls for the revision of the Confession itself, which in its very nature is simply a declaration to the world of what we believe the Bible to teach. Only one question of revision of the text of the Confession has so far been before the church at large, and that is the revision of the third section of chapter ten, commonly called the elect infant clause. Our church has wrestled with this question for a number of years, but seems little nearer a solution of it than when the agitation began. The anti-revisionists insist that the word elect shall stand, occupying the inconsistent and even contradictory attitude of holding that they believe in the salvation of all dying infants, but that the Bible does not definitely teach that all such are...
