Bean creek, or Tiffin river, as it is called on the early maps, rises in Devil s lake, situate on sections two, three, four, nine and ten in the township of Rollin, and sections thirty-four and twenty-seven in the township of Woodstock, said townships being the two most northerly townships in the west tier of Lenawee county. The creek flows from the western extremity of the lake, on section four in Rollin, a little north of west, to the east and west quarter line of section thirty-two in Woodstock, bends southward, flows through the western part of Rollin and along the west line of Hudson, leaves the county on section thirty, makes a bend on sections twenty-five and twenty-six in the township of Pittsford, Hillsdale county, returns to Lenawee county at the northwest corner of section thirty-six, flows southeasterly across the southwest part of Hudson, northeast corner of Medina, and southwest corner of Seneca township, crosses into the State of Ohio near the southeast corner of section six, township nine south of range one east, and then taking a southwesterly course, empties into the Maumee river at Defiance. Only that part of the Bean Valley situate north of the south line of Michigan is to be treated of in these sketches. That part of the valley is quite narrow, but embraces portions of two counties, Hillsdale and Lenawee....
